Southern Delaware Means... history and SMALL TOWN charm

Southern Delaware's constellation of picturesque downtowns - all charming, yet each with its own distinct personality - are great getaway destinations. From quaint B&Bs to luxury hotels, guests will find welcoming accommodations in walkable historic fishing and shipbuilding villages rivaling those of New England, charming beach and riverside towns, and rural retreats. And they will find that off season visits offer the same great amenities at great savings as well.

Southern Delaware Tax-Free shopping excursions make for fun family, mother-daughter, or girls' weekend trips. Each of the area's small towns offers singular shopping experiences thanks to the many unique boutique-style shops that line their streets. There are antique, vintage, and consignment shops sprinkled liberally throughout Sussex County. The area is also home to talented artists, artisans, and crafters and therefore to many small shops, galleries, and studios where their one of a kind works are exhibited and sold. And, of course, there are more than 130 outlet stores lining Route 1 between Lewes and Rehoboth Beach. The best part? No sales tax!

History buffs will delight in discovering the history of Sussex County through its small town museums. Our area's history began long before Captain John Smith began exploring tributaries of the Chesapeake Bay and met the Nanticoke Indian tribe near what's now the town of Laurel. The Nanticoke Indian Tribe is still an active cultural force in the county, hosting a large Powwow every September and maintaining their own museum as well.

Find out about the fascinating social, agricultural, maritime, and military history of Sussex County from pre-Revolutionary days to the present by visiting our 26 museums and viewing their collections of artifacts and memorabilia. Expert docents put collections in context and bring the area's history to life with stories of shipwrecks, pirates and their booty, storms, and political intrigue. Museum locations include a train station, a caboose, a WWII bunker, a lighthouse, a town hall, a firehouse, an airport, a mansion, a lifesaving station, a lightship, a church, a barn, a post office, a renovated ice house, several historic homes, and a garden shed. How's that for eclectic?

Our towns are also brimming with large and small performance venues, including The Freeman Stage at Bayside, an open-air performing arts venue that offers diverse programming and national performing artists and community theaters including Clear Space Theatre in Rehoboth Beach, Possum Point Players in Georgetown, and the Milton Theatre. From architecture to history to festivals, the unique personality of each small Sussex County town ensures visitors' explorations will be full of delightful surprises.

CELEBRITY SIGHTING

JIMMIE ALLEN'S PERFECT DAY AT THE BEACH

He was on his way back from meeting up with a friend in downtown Rehoboth when I caught up with Jimmie Allen in Millsboro. Jimmie Allen, a country music singer/songwriter, is famously known for his #1 Hit Songs, "Best Shot" and "Make Me Want To." He's toured all over the world, been nominated for a CMT Award and recently recorded with superstar Noah Cyrus. Jimmie loves his hometown so much that he recorded a song called, "Slower Lower," and even named his debut CD, "Mercury Lane," after the road he grew up on in Milton, DE. So naturally, when he comes home, his first stop is the Quick Stop in Milton for an iconic scrapple, egg & cheese sandwich. From there he heads down route one to Henlopen Bait & Tackle, which he describes as "the little yellow house that's behind Arby's over by 5 points." He grabs some bait and drives over to the public dock on Pilottown road, hops in the boat and rides down the canal towards Oyster Rock to fish for Croaker, Spot and Summer Flounder. After a morning of fishing Jimmie likes to walk on the Rehoboth boardwalk and play arcade games. "You gotta go to Gus & Gus and get a cheesesteak!" he adds. Since Jimmie used to work at Funland

he still uses his "tickets for life" to ride the Sea Dragon, his favorite ride. Since mentioning that he had worked at Funland, I took a little detour and asked him where else he had worked at the beach. Jimmie proudly listed them all. "Anne Taylor, Superfresh, Grotto Pizza, Timberland, Burger King, Abercrombie & Fitch, Marshalls, LL Bean, Geoffrey Beene, Hollister, Polo, Lowes for 10 minutes and left, Home Depot for like 20 minutes, and was hired at TGIFridays but didn't show up. My favorite job was delivering pizzas for Grottos. It was super cool cause the people would give you like $100 bucks for a $30 bill and they'll say just keep it. So you got like a $70 tip. But the best was when I would 'accidentally' drop their pizza in the box and then I would eat it...it's so good. Hands down. Grotto is my favorite pizza. My favorite thing to do is go to Grand Slam in Lewes and play some games, drink a Dogfish 60min or Coors Light and hang out."

When Jimmie is home he likes to eat beach food. Quick Stop, Gus & Gus and Grotto Pizza are his breakfast, lunch and dinner. The Ice Cream store in downtown Rehoboth Beach has over 100 different flavors of ice cream. So what's he ordering? "Just Vanilla. I'm simple. In a Cup. I used to go to Kings Ice Cream a lot in Milton, that's where I had my first kiss," he explains. His favorite candy is Reeses Cups, but he's all about the sour gummy worms and chocolate fudge at Candy Kitchen. And, Thrasher's Fries. During the summer, when Jimmie wants to get in the water, he goes to Lewes Beach. He likes to skimboard in Rehoboth because the waves are better. He recommends to, "go as far left as you can past that pink hotel (Boardwalk Plaza), because it's not too busy over there." Sometimes he'll cool off at Jungle Jims Water Park and then ride go-karts Midway. People watching also came highly recommended. Jimmie used to hop on the ferry to Cape May and back, just to people watch or sit on the boardwalk and feed seagulls. That was until they started fining people. Before Jimmie finishes off his day performing to sold out crowds at the Rusty Rudder or Bottle & Cork in Dewey Beach, you might find him sipping on makers and ginger catching up with friends at Hammerheads, the Summerhouse, which used to be his "spot" or the Purple Parrot cause the drag shows are fun. Jimmie's "perfect day at the beach" ends with a beautiful trip down memory lane... "My favorite fishing spot of all time is in Lewes when you get to the public dock... there used to be an old clam factory back there and we used to go fishing behind it with with my Grandmom and my Mom...it's where I first learned to fish."

FROM BOARDWALK FRIES TO FINE DINING

SOUTHERN DELAWARE MEANS GREAT EATING.

Wow. Where to start? Southern Delaware has become known as The Culinary Coast™ because of its incredible concentration of top notch, James Beard nominated and award-winning chefs and dining establishments. The area has developed into a mecca for foodies, with the Eating Rehoboth tours topping many visitors' to-do lists.

While it may appear to visiting beachgoers that Sussex County's #1 industry is sunshine and surf, in reality agriculture is our biggest economic driver. This is great news for visitors and locals alike because it means the restaurants of our Culinary Coast™ serve up delicious dishes made with the freshest possible ingredients. In fact, most visitors to Southern Delaware have traveled farther to get here than the food that's served here! Love to cook? You can serve up the freshest ingredients too. Our farmers' markets are amazing and there's at least one taking place nearly every day of the week in season.

A Southern Delaware Tourism initiative called Local on the Menu (localonthemenu.com) pairs local farmers and producers with area restaurants that display the logo on their menus to let guests know their ingredients are the tastiest, freshest ingredients available. In fact, there are so many excellent restaurants to choose from here that we've added a section to our website to help visitors select eateries based on their desired location and dining preferences.

Southern Delaware is also home to many farms that welcome visitors and sell their own home-grown products, including some that you can pick yourself. If you've never been to a winery, or a lavender farm, or if you haven't tried farm fresh ice cream, lavender chocolate, cherry cider, or bison burgers, visit our local farmers and nurserymen and expand your horizons!

Our area boasts two wineries, several renowned breweries, distilleries, and a meadery. Milton is home to the very popular Dogfish Head Craft Brewery. Wine tastings, winery, brewery, and distillery tours, and cooking classes offered by award-winning chefs from several of our most popular dining establishments are must-dos for locals and visitors alike, as are walking food tours. A visit to Southern Delaware in the off season yields a tasty bonus as well: Most local eateries remain open year-round and offer deep discount dining specials for locals and savvy visitors.

Come to the Culinary Coast .™
Life tastes better here!
